Archduchess Maria's Comfortable Dowry

Africa.

National Associated Press to the Star.
LONDON, Oct. 6.—A dispatch from Capetown announces that King Cetewayo has arrived there. His Majesty was dressed in a neat suit of European clothes, which it was evident from his actions he found much less comfortable than his native dress. He was accompanied by four of his wives, four of his followers and one little girl, all of whom regarded with great astonishment the novel and strange scenes about them. The captive King was immediately imprisoned under guard in the castle, but not under conditions of servitude.

When informed that the Government of Her Majesty, the Queen of Great Britain, desired to treat him with unusual leniency and consideration in view of his extraordinary valor in war and his previous distinction as a ruler of the Queen's people, and that English officials had been instructed to supply him with everything necessary for his comfort, Cetewayo immediately and in a haughty manner demanded that ten more of his favorite wives be sent for at once. He said he had been accustomed to their society and would feel lonely without their presence. He was told that the English authorities would consider his request, but would probably not grant it. The de-throned monarch is a marvelous eater and sulks like a child unless he is promised that an entire ox will be roasted for his particular benefit daily.

When asked what he thought of Capetown and high civilization, he, in a satirical manner, expressed his wonder at the things around him, holding up his hands deprecatingly and saying: "Oh, I was only born yesterday; I am a mere baby; I never should have fought against such good men as the English who intended to take away my country. They shot us to make us Christians, and I am sorry for shooting back at them." Cetewayo will be confined in Capetown until a final decision has been arrived at as to a proper disposal of his person.

John Dunn, a Scotchman, and for a long time one of King Cetewayo's principal advisers, has been appointed chief of one of the most important districts in Zululand, including the section near Natal. One of the first acts of Mr. Dunn was to issue an order forbidding any missionaries to settle in his district.

POISONED AT CHURCH.

Communion Bread that Was Mixed With Ratsbane.

Special to the Star.

MAYFIELD, Ky., Oct. 6.—The startling news comes from Farmington, in this county, that fifteen persons who participated in the meeting of the Old Baptist's Association at that place had been dangerously poisoned.

The disaster was the result of mixing the bread of which they partook with rat poison, by mistake, in place of soda. Doctors were summoned, and the church was at once converted into a hospital.

It is understood that the bread was administered at the communion. The services were afterwards continued under neighboring trees, and at last accounts the poisoned people were doing well. None, it is thought, will die.

Awful Aeronautic Calamity in California.

National Associated Press to the Star.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—There can now be found no one who is willing to offer an opinion that Prof. John Wise and Mr. Geo. Burr, the two men who started on their mysterious air voyage in the Pathfinder over a week ago are still in the land of the living.

Even Prof. Downey no longer entertains any hope that they have escaped. It is still the general belief that the balloon went down at night in the dense woods of the Maconpin, or Otter Creek bottoms, and that the remains of the two voyagers will eventually be discovered. One of Mr. Mabley's circulars, which must have been thrown from the balloon, was found at Carlinville, Ill., and as this town is beyond the Maconpin bottom, the balloon in all probability passed on to the Otter Creek before descending. Parties will be at once sent out to explore these forests.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT AT SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—Professor Colgrave and Charles Williams were killed yesterday at Woodward Garden by a balloon accident. Williams was Superintendent of the Garden. When the balloon was released from the ropes it was carried against the corner of a shed, injuring Colgrave and detecting the course of the balloon so that telegraph wires caught the ropes, severing half the ropes supporting the basket. Williams held on while the balloon was carried five hundred feet, and then fell, striking on the curb of the sidewalk, killing him instantly. Colgrave, still in the basket, appeared to be trying to open the valve, when the balloon collapsed letting the basket come to earth like a shot. Colgrave lived only half an hour, and is the same aeronaut who had an adventure on the bay with Miss Allison and a correspondent of the Graphic.

PROBABLY A MISTAKE.

Special to the Star.

VINCENNES, Ind., Oct. 6.—At 3 p. m. Saturday a balloon was observed to pass to the north of this city, believed to be the "Pathfinder," with Professor Wise and young Burr, of St. Louis. It attracted the attention of quite a number of persons, some of whom attempted to distinguish it with telescopes, but without success.

It must have been four or five miles away, as its great height and distance seemed to diminish it to a small speck in the sky.

THIS MORNING AT MEMPHIS.

National Associated Press to the Star.
MEMPHIS, Oct. 6.—9 A. M.—The excessively warm weather and an increase of new cases causes a temporary check of the business revival. Stores continue to open but the increase in activity is nothing like what it would have been if warm weather had not set in. A record of thirteen new cases yesterday and three deaths shows that Yellow Jack is still with us. A slight rain fell yesterday, leaving the atmosphere close and in a very unhealthy condition. This rain, and it was light, is all that has fallen for over a month, and the excessive dry weather is watched with an anxiety second only to that regarding the fever.

A RANCHMAN FROM WHITE RIVER.

RAWLINS, W. T., Oct. 6.—A ranchman arrived last night from the vicinity of the White River Agency, bringing word that as late as Wednesday evening firing was heard in the direction of Payne's beleaguered command. As he had only one hundred and fifty rounds of ammunition it is not thought possible that they could have resisted the hostiles till to-day. Merrill reached Price's command on Fortification Creek Saturday, and expected to reach Payne yesterday. Dodge's negro company of the Ninth Cavalry had arrived at Price's aid.

CINCINNATI PORK-PACKING.

Colonel Sidney D. Maxwell's Annual Report.

Colonel Sidney D. Maxwell to-day submitted his annual report to the Pork-packers' Association. The report commences as follows:

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6th, 1879.
To the members of the Pork-packers' Association, of Cincinnati:

MEMBERS—The commercial year of 1878-79 reaches a conclusion under circumstances widely different from any previous year since the panic of 1873.

Any doubts entertained early in the year by the merchants and manufacturers of the country that we were approaching solid ground, disappeared in the presence of accomplished facts, giving place to a steadily increasing confidence and a general improvement in the business of the country.

In the pork trade the benefits perhaps have not been so marked as in some other departments, because the yellow fever again appearing in the South in midsummer, seriously checked business in that direction, and the clearest indications of a permanent change came as much of the provision you had passed and the main part of the manufactured article had left the country or gone into consumption.

But there have not been wanting unmistakable evidences of a permanently improved condition, and the past week, as far as Cincinnati is concerned, has been to the packers one of fair remuneration.

The new provision year approaches under many favorable circumstances. The shipments of the hog product about have been without precedent; the wants of the West great, and the failure of the crops, must very great during the coming year, the broad fields of the West have yielded the husbandman a rich return for his labor; new life thrills through the whole industrial and commercial body, and the business future is bright with promise.

But business needs more than propelling power. The brakes may be necessary to save it from the consequences of its own momentum. The outlet for our surplus is the world. The world wants our products at moderate prices, not at excessive ones, and the cheaper we can furnish them, and yet receive a return for the capital and labor employed, the better in the end it will be for all classes.

It is true that the general business activity does not necessarily mean, at present, larger profits to manufacturers, but the prices of manufactured articles in many instances follow the advance in raw materials with reluctance, and that in some departments of production, slender as have been the profits of the past, there has been little or no increase in prices.

Though at the prices there has been increased demand, yet high priced raw materials sooner or later will check the progress of the business, and this eventually impairs demand. It is plain business propositions such as these could have their due weight in directing the business movements in the new year, on which we have entered, it would save the future from many a business sorrow which will ensue should the fair winds which now fill the sails of the business crafts of the country swell into a gale of speculation and inflated values.

The benefits of the Cincinnati Southern Railway to the provision interest of the city have been marked during the year, not in opening up the route for the export of manufactured products, but in materially increasing the receipts of stock. The number of hogs came over the road last winter, while there were liberal receipts of both cattle and sheep during the past spring and summer. The connection now being made between the Cincinnati and the Cincinnati & Baltimore Railroad, by which stock will be transferred without charge to the United Railroads' Stock yards will add materially to our facilities for transacting this business.

The general facilities for handling live stock here are generally growing better; the desirable facilities of a market are increasing, and the number of persons who seek the city for supplies is enlarging. The business of the United Railroads' Stock yards, according to the figures of George Ledlie, Esq., Assistant Secretary, furnished to-day, shows a material increase over 1877-78, and has been the largest in the history of the yards.

The receipts of hogs aggregated 22,686 head compared with 783,861 in the previous year; of cattle, 158,869 compared with 124,851 and of sheep, 328,897 compared with 274,027. In hogs the increase has been about 12 1/2 per cent., cattle 11 per cent. and sheep 20 per cent. The entire receipts of hogs, cattle and sheep at these yards show an increase over 1877-78 of 107,711 head. The shipments were as follows: 1878-79: hogs, 208,406; cattle, 62,421; sheep, 341,132. 1877-78: hogs, 175,043; cattle, 52,862; sheep, 307,103.

It will thus be seen that there has been a material increase in the shipments of all kinds of stock, and yet it is noticeable that the net receipts have been much larger than in the previous year. The average weight of the hogs weighed shows a material falling off, having been 242 1/2 pounds gross in comparison with 260 1/2 in 1877-78. Both cattle and sheep, however, have increased in weight, the former having averaged 886.06 pounds in comparison with 974.3, and the latter 82.99 pounds compared with 75.98. It must be remembered, too, that these figures do not embrace our entire business in stock. The Miami Stock Yards, Slimer's Stock Yards and the Covington Stock Yards, each makes liberal contribution to the grand aggregate of the stock business of the city.

The committees appointed during the year to act in conjunction with the Provision Inspection Committee of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce with view to the revision of the rules for the regulation of the provision trade of this city has not made a report. The rules of the Chamber lack definiteness in many particulars and could be improved. If revision occur the advantage of making it easy, so that the revised rules may go into the annual report of the Chamber is apparent.

At a meeting in February the attention of the Association, to the disbursement of a good exhibit of the hog product at the Seventy Cincinnati Industrial Exposition, and Wm. Henry Davis, Esq., was appointed the representative of this Association to co-operate with the officers in this effort.

An excellent and tasteful exhibit, though not by the Association, has been made at the Exposition, and is a successful success, but it is to be regretted that so few packers saw fit to participate in the display.

The past year has been the only one in five in which no death in the membership of the Association. In the hope that the approaching year may be equally favorable in all respects this report is respectfully submitted.

In behalf of the Board of Directors,
SIDNEY D. MAXWELL, Secretary.
